“ I have been looking for Andrew for years and I'm heartbroken that I am finding his obituary and not him. As a child this man was my everything. He showed me what it was like to be a family, and how a man should treat a woman. Oh and he also taught me how to catch mice, which I'm still pretty good at. I am happy to read that he had children of his own but also want him to know he was and always will be the perfect father I ever had, even if it was only for a short time.

I have been looking for a man who holds a special place in my heart for years by this name. From the obituary it sounds like this is him. I am truly heart broken. ~Naima~ naimagray@mail.adelphi.edu
