“ To the Warner family

Despite the loss of the physical presence of your sister Valerie, I know that God has assigned her to watch over you throughout your life. I feel for your loss, my most sincere condolences.

“ Valerie had all the manners in the world. She would say, "Good Morning Wayne," at least 5 times each morning. I usually reminded her that she said morning already, then she would say morning again and then smiled.

Some days after Valerie ate her lunch, we would walk down to Barclay Street where I would go into the Catholic Church and Valerie would continue on to Chambers Street to buy mangoes.

Valerie charted her own course in life because she was clear on what she wanted to accomplish. She accomplished some and I am truly sorry she did not get to do it all. Valerie, the workaholic helped everyone she could reach out to in the office and now God in his infinite love and grace has reached out to her. I will miss Valerie and will always remember her. I will always try to speak about her in the present and future tense, because her past deeds will always follow her memories and remain current with us who possess those memories. Thanks Valerie for being you.

Love, Wayne Murray & Family.
