“ Whitney E. Waters

“ I did not know Whitney for very long, but despite that could perceive instantly when we met that he made everyone feel as if they were old friends; who had an infectious personality, incredible work ethic, warming smile and fun sense of humor. Whitney made me feel welcome and respected during the first days in my new job and we even started to share an inside joke “and”... referring to the likelihood that colleagues always needed more than one thing when they approached with work requests. I wish I could have gotten to know Whitney more, but I’m grateful to have met him and am sure he positively impacted so many lives. Wishing peace, healing and the comfort of happy memories to Whitney’s family, cherished friends and colleagues.

“ Whitney and I used to make fun of each other's favorite sports team. We would have friendly little bets on games. Every time a old R&B song came on I would say to him what do you know about that song? He would say to me I have children older than you and would bust out laughing. Whitney you will be missed my brother.

“ I worked alongside Whitney for 10 years. One day I interrupted a group meeting and he scolded me for not saying good morning to everyone first. The next day I made sure to find him to wish him one!

After a few days this became a morning routine, and seeing him to wish him a Good Morning was something I always looked forward to. It started the day off right! I remember coming in last Tuesday and missed seeing him that morning. It was sadness that I later learnt of his passing.

Whitney was a great person to work alongside. He was an example of someone who worked hard and supported his team. But even more so, I enjoyed his humor and banter, his friendly teasing, even his attitude even when things were upside down.

Its amazing to think that we spend more time with those we work, than many of our friends outside the office. This is why I've grown to really appreciate and value the people who I work alongside everyday. Whitney was a part of us, and he will be greatly missed. Remember in your prayers how many people he impacted here at Christies by the simple nature of being who he was--A wonderful, wonderful man!

“ Dear Whitney, I wish I were not writing to you this way today. I am so sorry to you, your family, your closest loved ones and all of us who care for you. You made all of our lives better, much richer, more fun and more soulful by having been lucky enough to know you, talk with you and laugh with you. I am dumbfounded for something so tragic to happen and everyone shares how much we will miss your wonderfully kind, big hearted and positive presence. You are a bright light in your life and you will be in Heaven. If anyone's laugh and smile could be heard and felt from up there, yours will. Thank you for all you shared and all you did. Whether at work or anywhere you walked, you made indelible contributions. My deepest condolences and prayers to your family who you made clear hold all of your heart. Rest In Peace, Whit.

“ To Whitney's immediate and extended families. I realize that words from a stranger do little to remedy the grief of an all too sudden and exceedingly sorrowful loss but please accept my most sincere and heartfelt condolences.

While Whitney's upright walk surely affords him his peaceful rest, if it is of any comfort to you; please know, that, among Whitney's many co-workers, I am not the only one whose daily prayers will be lengthened as you begin to cope with this new chapter in your lives. We too will not find him written in the subsequent pages of ours but I can without reservation attest that he lives on in our hearts and undoubtedly, through the countless exchange of fond remembrances yet to come.

As an attempt to honor his memory, I'll offer you this seemingly backwards and insignificant example: Having been one of Whitney's more proximate co-workers during the last nine years I can definitively say, that, to my knowledge he had not once been the recipient of any negative press, neither in open face to face dialogue nor in quiet circulation behind his back. This is actually remarkable when considering the myriad complexities of our workplace and the rarity that any of us have managed to fend off even a single taste of the poison pen.

This fact about Whitney and other far more shining examples too lengthy to express here are tells that I regard as the achievement of an important benchmark when the final measurement of ones real successes in life are made upon the Golden Rule. For when a person reaches the finish line, all the while sleeping easy along the way and then passes away from this world having left no critics behind, there is clear indication that their life has been successfully lived, irrespective of its duration.

Although I extend to you my deepest respect and sadness for your tragic and untimely loss, I solace myself with knowing that Whitney was a winner at life.

“ whitney was a great guy. He was funny in his day and always had kind word to say to people. He was a lot of help at work whenever he was able to lend a helpful hand. He really cared about the guys an example was always being involved in the committee to make all of our work areas as positive as possible.

He will be greatly missed. I guess there is another star in heaven cause whitney is up there. So sorry for all of the families losses and bless you all.
